Dear President Biden,

With our nation's high drug addiction rates, the mental health crisis, and the epidemic of overdoses, the Office of National Drug Control Policy will be key in reversing such ominous trends. Science has shown that many addictive drugs, including marijuana, cause a suite of mental health disorders. It is imperative that a proven leader who understands the issues surrounding addictive substances and who has no business connection with companies that manufacture or market those drugs, be chosen for the head of ONDCP.

We support Patrick Kennedy as the best choice by far for this position and his nomination should come quickly. With his extensive knowledge of the devastating effects of substance abuse and mental illness, the former congressman has already established himself as a voice for those affected. His advocacy work has touched many lives. He has the courage to make the difficult decisions necessary to decrease the harms of the drug culture and to improve access to drug treatment.

He's also an outstanding, inspirational speaker. When Patrick Kennedy speaks, his audience immediately grasps the sincerity of his concern. He advocates for our families impacted by addiction and provides a reasonable voice during this crisis. While others in the political realm have pushed to expand the drug culture, he seeks to limit it. As he stated in one impassioned presentation, he wants his children and all American children, to grow up healthy and strong, i.e. without having to navigate through a minefield of increasingly easy access to drugs and intense peer pressure to use them.

The safety of our country, the health of our children and families, and our very future are at stake as policies that promote more drug use gain traction in our nation. Please nominate Patrick Kennedy for Drug Czar today.

In all sincerity,

Thank you for your support,
The staff at Citizens for a Safe and Healthy Texas
